

Online configurator for Quadro oven runners

New Hettich service for white goods manufacturers

Hettich's Quadro runner systems have been a reliable feature in state-of-the-art ovens from the manufacturers of a wide range of well-known brands for years. Now, the fittings specialist is offering a practical online configurator that enables appliance manufacturers to quickly get started with the design process. The configurator includes all of the different versions of the runners, including their various features and connection options, enabling manufacturers to plan the ideal Quadro oven runner, visualize it in 3D, and integrate it into existing design systems in just a few steps.

Quadro oven runners are a key convenience and differentiating feature in high-quality appliances. Hettich has a very broad product portfolio perfectly tailored to its white goods customers. Manufacturers can use the online configurator to create their preliminary plans for a new oven model with complete independence and efficiency, meaning that they can pour their focus completely into their design wishes and requirements. The online configurator makes it easier to choose the ideally suited Quadro runner and supports the overall appliance design work. The configuration created in the configurator is available for downloading as a drawing file and can be imported easily into your own planning software. This means that your initial oven runner configuration, including the CAD data that is generated, enables a fast start with the ongoing design process and is the ideal basis for time-saving processing. Hettich's experienced developers will be happy to provide support in the final design and realization of the

Quicker and easier planning with the configurator

Appliance manufacturers will find the configurator on the Hettich website: <https://www.hettich.com/short/l37kym8>

The registration process is very easy. Once registered, you will have free access to the new configurator and can immediately start with the first layout for a Quadro drawer runner project.

Hettich is extending its comprehensive range of services with the online configurator: appliance manufacturers can take the first step themselves – and Hettich will provide personal support until the ideal solution is found. Why not get started right away?
